Family Booklet

What is Family Tree?

- Family Tree is the part of FamilySearch.org that displays generations of your family and has information about those people. You can see how the generations fit together.
- You can also see specific information about an ancestor, like their complete name, their parents, their siblings, vital events, photos, and stories.
- When you sign in, the system displays a pedigree chart with you in the main position. Your ancestors are on the right. Your descendants are on the left.

Seeing Generations and Info on a Specific Person

Seeing Generations and Information about a Specific Person

In Family Tree, when you click a person's name, a summary card is displayed. Use the summary card to see different information about the ancestor. This is especially handy when you want to move from seeing generations to seeing information about a specific person.

- You may have so many circumstantial pieces of evidence that you need to leave a report behind for your family to read. Save a file under the Discussions area at the bottom of the person page.
- If someone places a different date, name, etc. on your tree, contact them and ask them for their reason. There is a place for discussions and notes on the bottom of each person's detail page.
- If you save your sources in the Notes area of your software program, they can be moved over all at once to this Notes area.
